

OBSESSIVE-COMPULSIVE DISORDER

Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder (OCD)

is a chronic condition in which a person has uncontrollable recurring thoughts (obsessions) that lead to compulsive behaviors. If you are between 18 and 65 years old and have been diagnosed with OCD, a research study may be able to help.

Qualified participants include:

- Adults between 18 and 65 years of age
- Those diagnosed with OCD
- Those whose current OCD medication is not working
- Additional criteria apply

Qualified candidates who participate will receive study-related care at no cost and receive compensation for travel.
